Course Overview

Welcome to the Assistance Dog Training Specialisation course

This program is designed for individuals who have already completed the ACM40322 Certificate IV in Animal Behaviour and Training and are eager to expand their expertise in training assistance dogs. Throughout this comprehensive course, students will embark on a journey to learn how to train assistance dogs for a wide range of uses and functions, making a meaningful impact on the lives of both dogs and their handlers.

The course is structured to provide a holistic learning experience. It begins with an engaging online component, where students will delve into the theoretical aspects of assistance dog training. This includes gaining an in-depth understanding of the relevant legislation, ethics, and techniques required in this specialised field. You'll also explore the various roles assistance dogs can play in helping individuals with disabilities and the specific training protocols associated with each role.

Following the online portion, students will embark on a transformative two-week practical training experience at our Dog Training Facility. Here, you will have the opportunity to put your newfound knowledge into action. You'll learn how to assess, select, and train dogs to become reliable and compassionate assistance dogs. Practical hands-on training will be emphasised, enabling you to develop the essential skills necessary to become a proficient assistance dog trainer.

By the end of this course, you will not only possess the expertise to train assistance dogs effectively but also understand the unique needs of handlers and how to facilitate the successful pairing of assistance dogs with their human companions. This program equips you with the knowledge and hands-on experience to make a positive impact in the world of assistance dog training, fostering independence and enhancing the quality of life for individuals with disabilities.
